Need Help Getting Started?

This website uses several methods to present information about the family history. Indexes are available to quickly locate individuals, families, places etc. The information is provided in narrative form but also as timelines, ancestor charts, diagrams (or family trees) and geographically via a map.

There are a number of interactive features to assist you in navigating your way around these pages.

Click on the subheadings marked with '▶' below to open each section, or the large  icon above right to open up all sections below.

▼ General Notes

Sirius was best friends with James Potter, Harry's father, and was also friends with Remus Lupin and Peter Pettigrew. When the group discovered that Lupin was a werewolf, they studied secretly to become Animagi in solidarity with Lupin, to keep him company during his transformations.

When the Potters went into hiding from Voldemort, they wanted to make Sirius their Secret-Keeper, but at the last minute he convinced them to appoint Pettigrew to the task instead, since no one would suspect such a move. Pettigrew immediately betrayed the Potters to Voldemort, and during the subsequent confrontation with Sirius, caused an explosion to fake his own death, killing twelve nearby Muggle bystanders in the process. Sirius was left framed for Pettigrew's "murder" and those of the bystanders, as well as the Potters' betrayal. In light of the overwhelming evidence against him, his guilt was assumed so completely (in particular by the ruthless Barty Crouch) that he was sent straight to Azkaban without trial and imprisoned there for twelve years, during which he endured relentless mental torture at the hands of the Azkaban guards, the dementors.

His later escape from prison led to the widest manhunt ever in the wizarding world (being the first person known to have escaped Azkaban, though in reality, he is second to Barty Crouch, Jr.), and he fled Europe for a time, only to return on Dumbledore's orders in The Order of the Phoenix, where he was forced to stay in his old family home, Grimmauld Place. It was impossible for The Order to reveal his location and prove him innocent for various reasons. His death at the end of The Order of the Phoenix, in the Ministry itself, led to Dumbledore explaining his story to the Minister of Magic. Tragically, Sirius was only recognized as innocent after his death.

▼ General Notes

Her hair was grey and messy, her eyes popping and rolling.

She died in 1985, but her portrait remained at 12 Grimmauld Place, where it screamed insults at the various members of The Order of the Phoenix, including her son Sirius, after they made the house their headquarters. In the portrait she appears as an hysterical woman in a black cap whose eyes are rolling and whose yellow-skinned face is stretched taught. Her unpleasant appearance may be more the result of her unpleasant attitude than of the natural aging process.

General Notes

Carmichael tries to hawk a bottle of Baruffio's Brain Elixir to Harry and Ron for twelve Galleons before their O.W.L.s. (Eddie swore the elixir was solely responsible for the nine Outstanding O.W.L.s he had achieved the year prior.) However, the transaction was terminated by Hermione Granger, who, acting as prefect, confiscated the elixir (which was actually doxy droppings) and disposed of it in a toilet.

Carmichael seems to be highly intelligent, a distinguishing characteristic of all Ravenclaws, but unscrupulous.

♂ Barty Crouch, Jr

Barty was born in 1963.

▼ Birth Notes

Crouch is a Death Eater who was captured with the group responsible for torturing Frank and Alice Longbottom, parents of Neville Longbottom. His father, who headed the Department of Magical Law Enforcement at the time, sentenced him to life imprisonment in Azkaban.

However, Crouch's father rescued him as a favour to his dying mother by switching their bodies. Crouch's mother later died and was buried under his name. His father kept him under control with the Imperius Curse and forced him to hide under an invisibility cloak at all times. Crouch was nursed back to health by Winky, the family's House-Elf. Bertha Jorkins discovered the truth, and years later it reached Lord Voldemort. He rescued Crouch and put his father under the Imperius Curse. Crouch then kidnapped Mad-Eye Moody and, with the help of the polyjuice potion, took over Moody's job of teaching Defence Against the Dark Arts. His father was later killed by Crouch himself.

Crouch planned to succeed where his master had failed, but also failed to kill Harry. Under the influence of Veritaserum, a powerful truth potion, he recounted his plan and his intentions throughout the year. He was to be watched over so that he could give his testimony later, but instead, before he could come to trial, he had his soul sucked out by Dementor's Kiss. It is important to note that he is still technically alive, but one would hardly dare to identify what he has been reduced to as "alive." It is never revealed what happened to him after he had his soul sucked out, but it is assumed he either died or was sent back to Azkaban.

♂ Nearly Headless Nick

He died on October 31st, 1492.

▼ Death Notes

He is a ghost

▼ General Notes

Nearly Headless Nick is the Gryffindor ghost whose neck was almost completely severed in life (45 swings to the neck with a blunt axe), but not enough to join in the games of the Headless Hunt, a society of ghosts who had been decapitated on earth (a source of annual vexation to the ghost). ♂ Cedric Diggory

Cedric was born in 1978. He died due to murder / assassination at the age of 17 on June 24th, 1995.

▼ Death Notes

Cedric dies during the Triwizard Tournament. During the third task, Harry saved Diggory's life twice while in the maze, and in the race for the cup, Cedric refused to take the cup without Harry, so they grasped it together. The cup turned out to be a portkey which transported them to Voldemort and his servant Wormtail. Wormtail murdered Diggory with the Avada Kedavra curse. Harry escaped and brought Cedric's body back to his parents.

▼ General Notes

Cedric was the Hufflepuff Quidditch captain and Seeker. Cedric's father is Amos Diggory, who works at the Ministry of Magic; his girlfriend was Cho Chang. Cedric has been described as "the strong, but silent type" and "extremely handsome"; as a character he showed a notable streak for modesty and fairness. ♂ Albus Dumbledore

Albus was born in 1840.

▼ General Notes

Dumbledore is one of the most respected men in the Wizarding world. Harry Potter looks to him as his protector and guide.

Dumbledore is described as tall and thin, with long white hair and a long beard. He has blue eyes, a very long and crooked nose (looking as if it had been broken at least twice) and long fingers. He wears half-moon spectacles. He claims to have a scar above his left knee, its provenance unknown, which happens to be a perfect map of the London Underground.

Albus Dumbledore

▼ Occupation Details

From 1956 Albus' occupation was Headmaster for Hogwarts.

General Notes

Harry's only cousin, he is described as a large blonde boy. He is completely spoiled, and he gets a horrible delight in bullying smaller kids, and shows a complete lack of sensitivity; he is also a glutton.

Dudley has been thoroughly spoiled since birth, getting mountains of birthday and Christmas presents and then throwing a tantrum because he wanted more, being given two bedrooms in the house, never using one, and then screaming when it is given to Harry and generally given his way in almost everything. He shows the symptoms of a brat from his first year itself, when a disgusted Professor McGonagall tells Dumbledore how she saw the toddler Dudley kicking his mother and screaming for sweets.

Dudley Dursley

A rude, belligerent and selfish boy, Dudley is quite an unlikable character, although he knows how to be polite when he wants to make an impression (notably when his father's business associate came for dinner one evening). It can be inferred that he and Harry went to a private prep school in Surrey together, where Dudley and his gang of bullies ruled the school, and where the rest of the students shunned Harry as they knew Dudley hated him. With each passing year Dudley was overindulged in every way by his parents, which eventually made his morbidly obese and a careless student (he had reached the height and weight of a young killer whale at the beginning of the fourth book). Throughout their childhood together, Dudley would take any opportunity he could to humiliate and torment his cousin, Harry. Unlike his cousin, however, Dudley has no powers outside of his brutishness.

Education Details

Dudley attended Smeltings.

Education Notes

The same year Harry started at Hogwarts, Dudley was enrolled at his father's old boarding school, Smeltings. Smeltings is described as a snobbish public school with absurd traditions.

General Notes

Marjorie "Marge" Dursley is Vernon Dursley's sister and is described as being just like him, a large woman with hardly any neck and even a moustache.

Aunt Marge usually brings her dog Ripper with her to Privet Drive – he pines when he is away from her – and treats him better than she treats most humans. While Aunt Marge is gone, Colonel Fubster takes care of her other dogs.

Terrorizes Harry Potter when she comes to visit.

Aunt Marge

Occupation Details

Marge's occupation was Dog breeder.

Whereabouts

Occupancy/Contact Notes

Though she isn't a blood relative of Harry, he has been forced to call her "Aunt Marge". Marge lives out in the country, where she breeds bulldogs. Due to this she hardly ever visits Privet Drive, to Harry's great delight. However, each of her visits stands out in Harry's mind for her cruelty to him. Aunt Marge thinks Harry is a horrible boy, whose dad was a drunk and mother a fool.

Her most recent known visit was in Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban, when Harry made her float, making her resemble a balloon.

Marietta Edgecombe

General Notes

Marietta has curly, reddish-blond hair and is a friend of Cho Chang.

Marietta's mother is Madam Edgecombe, who helped Cornelius Fudge and Dolores Umbridge take control of Hogwarts. Madam Edgecombe works in the Floo Network Office, which is part of the Department of Magical Transportation in the Ministry of Magic, and she policed the Hogwarts fires, except for Umbridge's, to make sure that nobody in the school made contact with anyone the Ministry did not want them to have contact with.

Education Details

Marietta attended Hogwarts.

Education Notes

As Cho had a romantic interest in Harry Potter, who was at the centre of the Ministry's smear campaign, this left Marietta in a difficult position. Marietta joined Dumbledore's Army entirely because of peer pressure. Dumbledore's Army was doing the one thing the Ministry didn't want to happen; training students in combat.

Eventually, Marietta betrayed the D.A. to Umbridge; however, the parchment that all members had signed had been jinxed by Hermione, so she broke out with pustules which spelled the word, "SNEAK". Umbridge took Marietta to testify against Harry, but Kingsley Shacklebolt swiftly modified her memory, to keep Harry and his friends out of trouble.

♀ Petunia Evans (Dursley)

Petunia's father is Evans and her mother is Evans. She had a sister named Lily.

▼ General Notes

Is described as being a blonde woman, with bony hands, a horsey face and a very long neck, which she uses to spy on her neighbours. Was bitter and jealous that her parents were proud to have a witch in the family.

▼ Occupation Details

▼ Occupation Notes

She obsessively follows news about divorced movie stars while sniffing, "as if we're interested in their sordid affairs".

Aunt Petunia

At some point she met Vernon Dursley and married him. Petunia Dursley hadn't seen her sister for years and usually pretended she didn't have one - The Evans sisters weren't talking as Lily Potter knew how her sister felt about her. However one day Petunia discovered her nephew Harry Potter on her doorstep as she put out the milk bottles.

There was a note left with baby Harry by Albus Dumbledore, which explained that his parents Lily and James had been killed by Lord Voldemort, how Lily Potter had sacrificed herself to save her son's life and how living with his only other relatives would protect him from Lord Voldemort. Petunia and Vernon agreed to raise Harry, but kept him as downtrodden as possible in order to squash the magic out of him; they never told him how his parents died, instead claiming they had died in a car crash.

When Petunia and her husband, Vernon, attempted to throw Harry out of their house at the beginning of Order of the Phoenix, she receives a Howler from Dumbledore – "Remember my last, Petunia", which JKR has confirmed is referring to the note he left with one-year-old Harry on their doorstep. Rowling has also said that Dumbledore had corresponded with Petunia before that. Aunt Petunia has, therefore, more knowledge about the wizarding world than she will admit. Furthermore, Petunia has proved she knows what dementors and Azkaban are, claiming to have overheard a conversation between Lily and an "awful boy" that might have been James Potter. Petunia normally refers to James using his name, leaving the possibility that she has met other wizards.

♂ Argus Filch

▼ General Notes

While he arguably does not act maliciously, and is not an evil character, he is certainly both short- and ill-tempered, which has made him very unpopular with the student body. Filch's attempts to enforce the letter of rules against activities such as being outside the dorms late make life very inconvenient for Harry Potter and many of his friends. Captain of the Slytherin Quidditch team during Harry Potter's first three years at Hogwart.

Marcus Flint is a sixth year student in Harry's first year and is still in school two years later when he should have already finished school. Author J.K. Rowling explained this away by saying that he failed his exams[1]. In later printings of the first book, however, he is a Fifth Year. Gilderoy Lockhart

General Notes

He is a famous wizarding celebrity, having written many books on Dark Creatures and his encounters with them. He has blond, wavy hair and particularly straight and shiny teeth. He is narcissistic as he always thinks about beauty for himself, self-obsessed, and something of a buffoon. Despite his celebrity status amongst the wizarding community, his fan base consists mostly of middle-aged women and teenage girls.

Occupation Details

From 1992 to 1993 Gilderoy's occupation was Defense Against the Dark Arts Professor for Hogwarts, in Hogwarts.

Occupation Notes

Gilderoy Lockhart was exposed as a fraud when, trying to avoid travelling into the Chamber of Secrets, he revealed that he had not in fact performed all the amazing feats described in his books — instead, he had been stealing others' stories, placing memory charms on those people and taking credit for their accomplishments.

♂ Draco Malfoy

Draco was born on June 5th, 1980. Draco's father is Lucius Malfoy and his mother is Narcissa Black. His maternal grandfather was Cygnus Black and his maternal grandmother is Druella Rosier. He is an only child.

▼ General Notes

Draco is Harry Potter's principal rival at school. The rivalry between the two is such that Harry has at times perceived Draco to be his archnemesis. Draco is described as a pale-faced boy with white-blond hair, pointed features, and cold grey eyes. Harry describes him as a spoiled, arrogant, and selfish person.

▼ Education Details

Draco attended Hogwarts.

▼ Education Notes

Draco plays a crucial role in Half-Blood Prince, when Lord Voldemort orders him to murder the Headmaster of Hogwarts, Albus Dumbledore. Like Regulus Black, Draco is infatuated by the Dark Arts and eagerly takes on the task as a chance for glory, of which he seems to get very little. In an effort to prove himself, Draco works alone without the help of his cronies, Crabbe and Goyle, or his favourite professor, Severus Snape. Under his aunt Bellatrix Lestrange's instruction, Draco has become quite proficient in Occlumency, a skill that Harry has never mastered.

♂ Alastor Moody

▼ General Notes

Moody is horribly scarred, described as looking as if he had been carved out of wood by a person with only the crudest understanding of the human form. He has lost several body parts, including an eye, leg, and part of his nose in fighting practitioners of the Dark Arts, and is cautious—some might say paranoid— he refuses to eat or drink anything which he himself has not prepared 'as it is all too easy to poison an unattended cup.'

▼ Occupation Details

From 1994 to 1995 Mad-Eye's occupation was Defense Against the Dark Arts Professor for Hogwarts, in Hogwarts.

▼ Occupation Notes

Moody was appointed as the Defence Against the Dark Arts teacher at Hogwarts. Before the school year began, however, he was locked up in a chest by Barty Crouch Jr, a faithful follower of Voldemort, who used a Polyjuice Potion to take his form in order to replace him. Moody owes his life to the fact that one ingredient of the Polyjuice Potion is a part of the person whose form is to be assumed, such as a tuft of hair. Crouch Jr. needed to keep him alive, under the Imperius Curse, so he would be able to use his hair in the potion and question him. Moody's habit of carrying his own drink in a private hip flask allowed Crouch to take the Potion regularly without raising suspicion.

His occupation was Auror.

Scabbers

Peter, known as Wormtail, was born in 1957.

Birth Notes

Sirius and Remus Lupin reveal that Pettigrew is an Animagus who takes the form of a small rat. Called "Wormtail," he had become the secret-keeper for James Potter and his wife Lily Evans when Harry was a baby, in hopes that Lord Voldemort would pursue Black instead. However, he betrayed the Potters to Voldemort in order to gain the Dark Lord's favour. During the confrontation with Sirius on that fateful night, it was actually Pettigrew who blasted the muggles and then transformed himself to escape with the other rats down into the sewers. He left behind a finger, successfully faking his own death and framing Black for his and the Potters' deaths.

Peter Pettigrew

General Notes

Pettigrew had masqueraded as Scabbers, the pet rat owned at first by Percy Weasley, then by his brother Ron. It has not been revealed how Peter, as Scabbers, managed to get into the Weasley family. However, Pettigrew used his time with them to his advantage: he remained alert for any news about Voldemort or Black. None of the Weasleys took particular note that "Scabbers" outlived a common garden rat and had a missing toe.

♂ Quirinus Quirrell

▼ Occupation Details

From 1991 to 1992 Quirinus' occupation was Defense Against the Dark Arts Professor for Hogwarts, in Hogwarts.

▼ Occupation Notes

It is revealed that, during his travels, Quirrell had met a barely-alive Voldemort. Voldemort, seeking to restore his physical form, entered Quirrell as a host body, using him in a plan to steal the Philosopher's Stone from vault 713 in Gringotts Bank, where it had been deposited for safekeeping by Albus Dumbledore. Fortunately, Hagrid had removed the Stone from the vault earlier that same day to take it to Hogwarts.

To conceal the fact that Lord Voldemort's face was on the back of his head, Quirrell decided to wear the turban, hiding its purpose with a story that it had been given to him by an African prince as a thank-you for getting rid of a troublesome zombie. In order to keep Voldemort alive, he started killing unicorns in the Forbidden Forest and drinking their blood.

On Halloween Quirrell let the troll in as a diversion, and went to the third-floor corridor where the Stone was now hidden. Severus Snape, who already suspected Quirrell, went to the third floor in order to stop him. Snape was bitten by Fluffy.

In order to figure out how to get past Fluffy, Quirrell got Hagrid drunk, and gave him a dragon's egg, something Hagrid had always wanted. Quirrell sent a letter to Dumbledore, telling him to go to the Ministry of Magic; Quirrell took advantage of his absence to try to reach the Stone, and was pursued - unwittingly, as they thought they were pursuing Snape - by Harry, Ron and Hermione.

During Harry's final encounter with him - at which Voldemort reveals himself on the back of Quirrell's head and speaks directly to Harry - Quirrell is killed. Due to the lingering protection from Lily Potter's sacrifice of love for her son, Quirrell is unable to touch Harry without suffering extreme pain. Although Harry is rendered unconscious, he holds off Quirrell long enough for aid to arrive, at which point Voldemort flees in his spirit form. His departure causes Quirrell's death, hence Dumbledore's comment that Voldemort is as merciless to his followers as to his enemies.

Horace Slughorn

General Notes

Slughorn is described as having prominent, pale-gooseberry eyes, a "shiny pate," and an "enormous, silver, walrus-like moustache." He is "enormously fat", but not very tall, reaching only up to Albus Dumbledore's chin. He considers himself to be an old man who suffers from a weak, wheezy chest and rheumatism.

Occupation Details

From 1930 to 1980 Horace's occupation was Head of Slytherin for Hogwarts, in Hogwarts.

From 1930 to 1980 his occupation was Potions Professor for Hogwarts, in Hogwarts.

Occupation Notes

During his long initial period of employment at Hogwarts, Slughorn taught several of the main characters in the Harry Potter story. Among his pupils were a young Severus Snape and Lily Evans, Harry's mother and one of Slughorn's favourite students, whom he repeatedly praises as "one of the brightest I ever taught...vivacious...charming...cheeky". Significantly, however, an earlier cohort of students included Tom Marvolo Riddle. On one occasion, Riddle questioned Slughorn about Horcruxes, artifacts which could act as vessels for pieces of a person's soul in order to grant immortality. Having learnt of the nature of Horcruxes, Riddle went on to perform the necessary Dark magic to create his own Horcruxes, which contributed to his formidable power in his later reign of terror under his assumed name of Lord Voldemort.

From 1996 to 1997 his occupation was Head of Slytherin for Hogwarts, in Hogwarts.

From 1996 to 1997 his occupation was Potions Professor for Hogwarts, in Hogwarts.

Occupation Notes

Slughorn is keen to build connections, and makes a habit of hosting regular receptions for students who are famous, related to famous people, or gifted or talented in one way or another. Known as "The Slug Club", this coterie of students is at the core of Slughorn's constant round of dinners, parties and receptions. Sybill Trelawney

General Notes

Her first name is spelled Sibyll in the United States.

Trelawney wears many gaudy bangles, cloaks and shawls, all covered with shining sequins. She also wears thick glasses, which cause her eyes to appear greatly magnified. She affects ethereal and misty tones when speaking. Her classroom is in the North Tower of Hogwarts. A fire is always going, scented quite heavily with perfumes that often make students either fall asleep or make wondrous predictions of the future.

Occupation Details

From 1979 to 1996 Sybill's occupation was Divination Professor for Hogwarts, in Hogwarts.

Occupation Notes

Harry and his friends Ron Weasley and Hermione Granger believe Trelawney is a fraud, with which the teachers are inclined to agree. Her credibility as a Seer is undermined by her habit of making repeated predictions each year that one of her students will die - pronouncements which have never yet come true.

In Harry's third year (his first in Divination), Trelawney began to predict his imminent demise. During every class thereafter, she continued to insinuate that his death could come at any time, to the great irritation of Harry and his friends. Eventually, in part due to this habit of Trelawney's, Hermione dropped the class. Harry and Ron continued Divination studies until their fifth year, at the end of which they failed the exams and could not continue further - although neither was upset about this.

In 1996, Professor Trelawney was put on probation by Dolores Umbridge, Hogwarts High Inquisitor. This news pushed Trelawney into a spiral of alcohol-induced paranoia, and she was subsequently seen around the school clutching a bottle of cooking sherry and moaning about her victimisation at Umbridge's hands.

*Her fears were proved justified when Umbridge dismissed Trelawney, although Dumbledore exercised his remaining authority as Headmaster to prevent Umbridge from evicting Trelawney to boot. In Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince it is revealed that Dumbledore feared for Trelawney's safety if she ventured outside the school, since Lord Voldemort would probably want to obtain from her the prediction she made concerning him. Dumbledore employed a centaur named Firenze as Trelawney's replacement. Trelawney was reinstated after Umbridge was ousted from the school and returned to the Ministry of Magic. Much to her displeasure, Trelawney now shared responsibility for teaching Divination with Firenze.*

Dolores Umbridge

General Notes

Umbridge is a short, squat woman described as resembling a large toad. She often wears a black velvet bow in her hair that reminds Harry of a fly about to be caught. She has a high, girly voice that Harry describes as sounding like poisoned honey.

Occupation Details

From 1996 to 1997 Dolores' occupation was Headmistress for Hogswart, in Hogwarts.

Occupation Notes

After Dumbledore left Hogwarts, Umbridge was installed as Headmistress. However, the Headmaster's office refused to open for her, and her tenure as Headmistress was characterized by rebellion by most of the student body and faculty.

Her time in Hogwarts is characterized by cruelty and physical punishments against students — she stands out especially for forcing Harry and Lee Jordan to write lines using a quill that magically causes the words to be cut into the skin on the back of the writer's hand, and uses his blood as ink. She also ordered the botched whipping of Fred and George Weasley, and eventually even planned to use the Unforgivable Cruciatius Curse in order to extract information from Harry.

From 1996 to 1997 her occupation was Defense Against the Dark Arts Professor for Hogwarts, in Hogwarts.

Occupation Notes

Her class consists only of defensive magical theory, due to Fudge's paranoia of Dumbledore using his students as an army to bring down the Ministry.

From 1996 to 1997 her occupation was High Inquisitor for Hogwarts, in Hogwarts.

Occupation Notes

Umbridge is appointed the first (and only) ever "Hogwarts High Inquisitor," in which position she is given extraordinary powers over the students, teachers and curriculum. Umbridge creates an Inquisitorial Squad, which is comprised entirely of Slytherins and rewards some students for reporting on others and sanctions them to act as enforcers of Umbridge's rules. By attempting to defame Harry Potter and censor word of the truth of Voldemort's return, Umbridge and Fudge frequently unintentionally help the Dark Lord and his followers.

Romilda Vane

Romilda was born in 1982.

General Notes

Romilda has a celebrity crush on Harry throughout the sixth book, but she sometimes crosses the line. She introduces herself to Harry on the Hogwarts Express and invites him to join the group in her compartment, but not without making snide remarks about Neville Longbottom and Luna Lovegood, whom she considers "uncool." Harry stands up for his friends and refuses her invitation. Later in the year she attempts to trick Harry into taking a love potion, but while he takes the box of chocolates she gives him, he is wise enough not to eat them. Several months later, Ron Weasley accidentally eats several of Romilda's doctored chocolates and is affected by the love potion, forcing Harry to take him to Professor Slughorn for an antidote - which leads to Ron being poisoned by accident. Following Gryffindor's Quidditch victory towards the end of the book, Romilda is outraged to see Harry kissing Ginny Weasley, whom he starts dating shortly thereafter.

Education Details

Romilda attended Hogwarts.

He has five brothers and a sister, named Charlie, Percy, Fred, George, Ron and Ginny.

▼ General Notes

He is a good looking young man and has long red hair tied back in a ponytail and single fang earring.

Bill fought bravely in the Battle of Hogwarts, but did not escape unscathed. The werewolf Fenrir Greyback savaged Bill, albeit in his human form, and caused lycanthropy contamination to an unknown, partial extent. According to Remus Lupin, who is also a werewolf, this was not enough to cause actual transformations, though Bill has apparently developed a liking for extremely rare steaks and is left with a deeply scarred face. His and Fleur Delacour's plans to marry are unchanged.

Aragog

Aragog was born in 1942.

Birth Notes

Male Acromantula, an enormous sentient spider. Hagrid raised him from an egg as a Hogwarts student, supposedly keeping him inside a cupboard. The spider's discovery was partly responsible for Hagrid's expulsion.

While Aragog started as Hagrid's pet, after the expulsion he lived in the Forbidden Forest. Hagrid even found him a wife, Mosag, with whom Aragog had many offspring and became the patriarch of an entire colony of Acromantulas. He remained grateful to Hagrid, and kept his carnivorous children from attacking him when he came to visit (the service didn't extend to anyone else, as Harry, Ron and Fang found out the hard way in Chamber of Secrets). Aragog remained in the forest for the rest of his long life, eventually growing weak, going blind, and dying of natural causes after an illness in Half-Blood Prince.

Buckbeak (Witherwings)

Birth Notes

Male hippogriff

General Notes

He is sentenced to death after an attack on Draco Malfoy, which was provoked by Malfoy's disrespectful behaviour, but is rescued by Harry and Hermione and goes into hiding with Sirius Black at 12 Grimmauld Place.

After Sirius's death, Buckbeak returns to Hagrid's care, but is renamed Witherwings to hide his identity. As with all hippogriffs, Buckbeak is fond of eating small mammals, preferably ferrets. This is irony, as Mad-Eye Moody temporarily transforms Malfoy into a ferret the year after Draco had tried to get Buckbeak killed.

Fawkes

Birth Notes

Red and gold male Phoenix

Fawkes is an intensely magical creature, possessing a number of magical abilities, the precise extent of which are unknown, but which include: carrying immensely heavy loads; his tears have healing powers; encouraging song; can regenerate by bursting into flames; can disappear and reappear elsewhere at will. Two of his tail feathers from him were used to make wands. One for Lord Voldemort and one for Harry Potter. Tame phoenixes are very rare and he serves as proof of Albus Dumbledore's abilities and character. Fawkes is a herbivore.

Whenever Fawkes dies, whether it be by violence or old age, he bursts into flame and is promptly reborn out of the ashes as a baby phoenix. As an adult he's about swan-sized and quite beautiful, but his infant stage Fawkes has the appearance of a newborn chicken and in his geriatric stages he has dull, limp plumage.

After Albus Dumbledore's death in Half-Blood Prince, Fawkes is heard singing a lament for him. When the singing stops, Harry somehow knows that Fawkes has left Hogwarts forever. It is not known where Fawkes has gone, or if he may perhaps appear in the final book.

Hedwig

Birth Notes

Female snowy owl.

General Notes

Hedwig is a gift to Harry from Hagrid in the first book of the series, purchased in Diagon Alley while shopping for supplies for Harry's first year at Hogwarts. In the series, owls are used by witches and wizards primarily as message and package couriers, which make owls more useful than the other pets allowed students (rats, toads and cats), so Hedwig is used for messages throughout the series.

Occupation Details

Hedwig's occupation was Message deliverer.

Occupation Notes

She is able to find and deliver a message to any person without any directions, and possesses humanlike personality and intelligence.

Mrs Norris

Birth Notes

Female cat

General Notes

Mrs Norris is Filch's cat. For the students, it's the "dearest ambition of many to give her a good kick". If Mrs Norris catches a student putting one toe out of line, Filch will arrive in seconds. The cat has been known to follow Hagrid everywhere when he goes up to the school, apparently under Filch's orders – which suggests an extraordinary connection between cat and owner, and makes Hagrid want to introduce her to Fang.

Moaning Myrtle

She died on June 13th, 1943.

Death Notes

Unlike the other Hogwarts ghosts, Myrtle is not very sociable, and is sensitive about the fact that she is dead. Her constant moping and wailing causes plumbing problems in the lavatory which she haunts. Myrtle has a peculiar affinity for dwelling in the U-bend of certain pipes. Sometimes she is accidentally flushed out into the Black Lake along with the contents of the toilet she was in.

Moaning Myrtle's important role in Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets is to help Harry Potter, Ron Weasley and Hermione Granger find out about the monster inside the Chamber of Secrets.

Myrtle also helps Harry with his second task in the Triwizard Tournament, in Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire. It is Myrtle who tells Harry how to solve the puzzle of the golden egg that he retrieved in the first task, by opening the egg underwater.

Myrtle apparently has a slight crush on Harry, whom she invites to share her toilet in the event that he is killed while on a mission.

General Notes

She is a ghost who haunts the second floor girls' lavatory at Hogwarts School for Witchcraft and Wizardry. True to her nickname, Myrtle has a tendency to sob, whine, wail and complain.

Nagini

Birth Notes

Female snake

General Notes

She is a giant, twelve-foot long snake and a loyal pet of Lord Voldemort, who as a Parselmouth, is quite capable of communicating with her.

Nagini seems to be the "evil" equivalent to Albus Dumbledore's phoenix Fawkes. Even more so, however, she seems to be Voldemort's spiritual familiar, sharing an intimate bond with her master.

In the sixth book, Dumbledore speculates that Nagini may be one of the six Horcruxes that Voldemort left behind to achieve immortality.

Norbert

Birth Notes

Male dragon

General Notes

Norbert is a Norwegian Ridgeback dragon which Hagrid acquires as an egg and hatches himself. The Ministry of Magic classifies dragon eggs as Class A Non-Tradeable Goods. After hatching, he becomes very dangerous and bigger in the weeks following, so Harry, Ron, and Hermione persuade Hagrid to give him to Ron's older brother Charlie, who's studying dragons in Romania.

Peeves the Poltergeist

Birth Notes

He is a spirit.

Peeves, known as Peeves the Poltergeist, is no longer alive.

General Notes

Peeves is a poltergeist living in Hogwarts. He's a spirit rather than a physical being, but highly different from the ghosts he's occasionally mistaken for. Peeves is essentially an embodiment of disorder, and is constantly causing it, with varying amounts of mischievousness and malice. In appearance he's a small old man dressed in wildly coloured clothing. He's capable of flight and intangibility, like ghosts, but can also affect solid objects and make himself invisible.

He's usually far more annoying than legitimately dangerous, but acts in a wildly unpredictable manner and should not be given the chance to cause serious harm. It appears that his entire purpose is to cause disorder, break things, and be as annoying and disruptive as possible.

Peeves does not listen to Hogwarts prefects, teachers or anyone else, with the exception of Dumbledore and for some unknown reason the fearsome Bloody Baron. Argus Filch, who is usually left with cleaning up the mess and the damage Peeves causes, is his nemesis and works continuously to try to get Peeves thrown out.

Pigwidgeon

Birth Notes

Male owl

Pigwidgeon is an overeager, overconfident, hyperactive owl, especially compared to the more stately delivery owls. Pigwidgeon was a gift from Sirius Black to Ron, to replace his rat, Scabbers. Pigwidgeon was named by Ron's sister, Ginny.

There have been various theories as to what kind of owl Pigwidgeon is, but J.K. Rowling has confirmed (on her website) that he is a Scops Owl, a tiny breed of owl with earlike feathers that she had previously mentioned in an earlier book.

Though she isn't a blood relative of Harry, he has been forced to call

- Occupancy/Contact Notes
 - Though she isn't a blood relative of Harry, he has been forced to call her "Aunt Marge". Marge lives out in the country, where she breeds bulldogs. Due to this she hardly ever visits Privet Drive, to Harry's great delight. However, each of her visits stands out in Harry's mind for her cruelty to him. Aunt Marge thinks Harry is a horrible boy, whose dad was a drunk and mother a fool.*
 - Her most recent known visit was in Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban, when Harry made her float, making her resemble a balloon.*
